Write the opening of your story...

Flora had a special orchard where she grew up. It was a beautiful place with many flowers and the children loved to play there. One day, she found a small, round, brown object in the grass. She picked it up and looked at it closely. It was a small, round, brown object with a small hole in the middle. She was curious about it and decided to keep it. She put it in a small box and took it home. She showed it to her mother and she was very happy. She said, "That's a very nice object. It's a very nice object." She was very happy and she loved it very much.

Write the end of your story...

One evening, as she sat with her father, she noticed a small, round, brown object in the grass. She picked it up and looked at it closely. It was a small, round, brown object with a small hole in the middle. She was curious about it and decided to keep it. She put it in a small box and took it home. She showed it to her mother and she was very happy. She said, "That's a very nice object. It's a very nice object." She was very happy and she loved it very much.

Write the end of your story...

Deep in the woods, back in the old house, she heard the noise and almost sank through the floor. She fell asleep in the room. She was very tired and she was very happy. She was very happy and she loved it very much.

Woodpeckers have shared an extract of the writing they have been doing this week.

Red squirrel children have been writing non fiction information texts based on their favourite Greek god
